

The CityVille Post

June 29th 2108

Welcome to another great edition of the CityVille Post, crammed full of exciting stories of heroic deeds above the spires and rooftops of our grimy yet beloved city and capital of the great country of United North America. Yet again we have the SuperHeroicJusticeDoomSquad to thank for our continuing liberty from the forces of Evil, embodied by the particularly loathsome villain ReptoMan – Ed.

Amazing! Capture of ReptoMan

Captain Amazing! has finally managed to do what we all thought was impossible, and put ReptoMan away for good inside the safe walls of New-Alcatraz High Security prison for the Incurably Evil. The CityVille Post wants

Captain Amazing! to know just how incredibly grateful we all are to him, and his band of supporting Heroes. MORE ON PAGES 2-5. CAPTAIN AMAZING! PHOTOS AND INTERVIEWS ON PAGES 8-21

LADIES! Turn to pages 24 and 25 for our Fashion and Beauty Section. This week, WhizzoGirl gives us her favourite Beauty tips and tells us how to achieve her great hairstyle – ‘The WhizzoSwish’! She also gives us the inside scoop on her hectic life as a Superhero and incredibly glamorous Style Icon.

INTERNATIONAL NEWS ON PAGE 26: South America mourns the anniversary of the death of their Superhero ‘The Warrior of Hope’ at the hands of the evil Doom Lord; and African Hero Mr Zuzu retires, after eighty years of distinguished service.

BUSINESS NEWS ON PAGE 27: Industrial Spy targets CityVille! CEOs of top food companies claim that top secret recipes have been stolen. The business world is on high alert! CV$5,000 reward offered to anyone who can identify the spy.

Cityville’s new Mayor is to be announced tomorrow, after months of voting and allegations of vote-rigging. From the safety of his prison cell, ReptoMan has denied all claims that he has attempted to influence the election in favour of politician Dave Xanadu. While Dave has never been directly linked to ReptoMan’s evil plots, he is widely believed to be in the supervillain’s employment. Pundits claim that ReptoMan stands no chance of winning the election, no matter how much intimidation he tries... MORE ON PAGES 6&7.

The disappearance of banker I. Lentyov from Wall Street may have caused the CityVille Dollar to plummet in value. We hear from experts on the likely effects of this unexpected drop and whether now is a good time to buy property or not. We also ask if ReptoMan’s recent capture by Captain Amazing! will help boost the economy of our beloved CityVille, as a mood of unexpected optimism grips the Nation... MORE ON PAGES 22&23

Group Rules for the SuperHeroicJusticeDoomSquad

PAGE 12: Rooms / Villains Cell / Leadership Takeover Vote

12a) Each SuperHero group member has their own private room, where they can leave their own property with safety. Each room is protected by advanced eye-scanning technology that ensures that nobody else may enter.

12b) In the event of HOST declaring a Critical situation, the group may vote to throw any member into the Villains Cell. The vote must be carried by a three-quarters majority, and then the group member will be placed into the Villains Cell from which they cannot move until another group member lets them out. This vote cannot then be called again until 15 minutes have elapsed since a previous vote of any kind.

12c) If anyone wishes to challenge the leadership of the SuperHeroicJusticeDoomSquad at any time, then they must talk to HOST. HOST will call a general meeting to announce that a leadership vote is being called, and ask for nominations for leader. The current leader will automatically become a candidate, and any other candidate must be nominated and seconded. Then all candidates have 15 minutes to campaign before the votes are called. All group members must be present, and it must be an vote by open show of hands. The candidate with the majority vote becomes the new leader. Nothing comes with the leadership but prestige and decision-making privileges.
